Federal Grand Jury Now Endeavoring to Ascertain Who Furnished the Money

FORMER BOOK-KEEPER OF UNION QUESTIONED

Stubs of Union's Check Books and Account Records Taken Into Grand Juryroom at Indianapolis-Acting Secretary Hockin Puts in Appearance—Only Few Witnesses Called at Yesterday's Session-Strict Secrecy Maintained

Indianapolis, Dec. 14.—Going directly into the heart of the alleged dynamite conspiracy while the federal grand jury held its initial hearing in the case today. District Attorney Charles S. Miller took up the question of who furnished the money for purchasing and carrying about the country the explosives by which more than 100 structures were blown up.

Former Booklasner Questioned.

Former Bookbeeper Questioned. Mrs. Andrew J. Hull, now of Kimball, Neb., who, as Miss EdithWinenberenner, was bookkeeper for the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, and was familiar with its money receipts and disbursements, was closely questioned by Mr. Miller, and into the grand jury room were taken the stubs of check books and account records of the association during the five years in which the explosions took place. It was during a large part of these five years, according to his confession, that Ortic E. McManigal did dynamiting for John I. McManigan, the convicted secrecary-treasurer, and was often in company treasurer, and was often in company with James B. McNamara.

COURT AS EXHIBIT

Could Not Have Been Closed.

New York, Dec. 14.—The charred door frame which had stood at the head of the stairs on the ninth floor of the Asch building, was a striking exhibit today at the trial of Isaac Herris and Max Blanck, accused of causing the death of Margaret Schwartz in the Triangle Walst company disaster of March 25 last, in which 147 lives were lost. It was before this door, it is alleged, that many of the victims of the fire met their fate and on the question as to whether it was open or locked rests a considerable part of the state's case.

As the door casing stood before the jury John D. Moore, an expert engineer, pointed out spots in the frame which, in the natural order of things, would have been protected from fire had the loor been closed, and noted that these spots were not charred as was the rest of the casings surface. He was not permitted to say whether the uncharred portion indicated that it was protected from the fire by something other than the door.

Joseph Savina, a former employe of the building, testified that after the fround a panel from the door.

FREE ENTRY OF CHINESE

Washington, Dec. 14.—The free entry into this country of "combings of human hair" practically in their crude condition, from China and other lands for the manufacture of wigs, puffs, "rats," switches and other articles of personal adornment, will not be disturbed by the treasury department. Assistant Secretary Curtis decided today that duty should not be assessed, although the appraiser at New York contended that hair partially prepared should be charged twenty per cent.

should be charged twenty per cent.
ad valorem duty.

Investigation of the subject showed that the imperial Chinese edict ordering the clipping of queues has had no effect upon the supply of human hair for commercial purposes. The market has not been swamped with queues because the sons of China are carefully encasing their clipped queues in toxes of gold for preservation as relics for posterity.

McManigal Has Been Paid $5,000.

McManigal spoke in his confession of having been paid at least $5,000 and he said some person other than John J. McNamara did the paying, but after he and James B. McNamara blew up a viaduct in Cleveland in June, 1910, he had a dispute with the man over the amount he was to receive, and in consequence "J. J. took the matter in hand himself all the way through." For the Cleveland job, McManigal said he and James B. were paid $100 each.

CHORUS GIRLS' CASE

Will Probably Reach Jury Today-Charge That Power of Wealth Was in Evidence During the Trial,

New York, Dec. 14.—The jury which s trying Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad for their alleged attempt to Conrad for their alleged attempt to murder W. E. D. Stokes, heard from counsel today two final pleas for the show girls' acquittal which fairly bristled with denunciation of the millionaire sportsman, who now lies critically ill as the result of an operation. Tomorrow Assistant District Attorney Buckner will sum up for the prosecution, Justice Marcus will charge the jury and prebably before nightfall the case will be in the jury's hands.

Renewed motions to have the cross examination of Mr. Stokes, which was interrupted by his illness, stricken out on the ground that the defense had had no opportunity to clear up certain joints needed to complete its case were denied. Stokes was painted by Attorney Robert M. Moore as a "monster," determined to get possession of a beautiful young girl, and by getting an exonerating note from her free himself of all responsibility for causing her downfall.

The chief accusation, that of a plot between the girls to extort money from the millionaire, he held, was amply disproved by the fact that the girls bought their revolvers with no attempt at secrecy. Attorney Moore displayed a photograph of Miss Graham taken at the time of her visit to the Stokes farm at Lexington, to emphasize the point that she had been changed from a beautiful, healthy, buxom girl to the worn and fragle creature who bad wept on the witness stand. He declared that Stokes took the $1,700 from Lillian Graham not "because he wanted the money has because he wanted. Lillian Graham not "because he want-ed the money but because she was a

He cerided the idea of Stokes putting on his hat when about to rush into a fight for his life.
